Knowledge to Action introduces new Forex training course

Following demand from its clients, Europe's number one trader coaching company, Knowledge to Action, has introduced a new forex training course designed to teach intraday trading to those graduates who aspire to become full time forex traders.

In response to demand from graduates of the Ultimate Forex Profits Programme, Knowledge to Action has brought out the new MasterTrader Forex Programme to meet the more advanced needs of those who have begun forex trading as private traders. The company's trainers, who all have experience as real practitioners themselves, will lead the new course in the UK, Singapore and Australia, countries where Knowledge to Action's forex training courses and free seminars are already well-established.

The new MasterTrader course builds on Knowledge to Action's introductory and intermediate courses to teach graduates seven additional forex trading strategies, and to develop their skills in advanced technical analysis. Commenting on his experience of the new course, graduate Harry Mowat said,

"The Mastertrader adds much more detail to what you learn from the initial courses and gives you a few really good strategies so you can get a few odd percent here and there from power pivots and a few on the gap trading US Market as a way of adding to your profits for the week."

Once they complete the earlier courses, Knowledge to Action graduates are able to embark on a life of full-time forex trading. Some can testify to the effectiveness of the training, having embarked on a new lifestyle as forex traders. As graduate Jean-Hee Anh testifies, "I have been trading for 2 months...my best trading results so far were 4000 pips in 1 day which was brilliant. I would love to have repeats like that each month..."

The new course is a natural extension of Knowledge to Action's existing forex training courses, enabling graduates to attain the trading lifestyle that they are seeking.
